

March's Speakers Will be the Growers Round Table

The MOS is very excited to present a panel of seasoned orchid growers who have selected very useful topics for discussion which are geared towards novice orchid growers. The topic "Your First Orchid (What Now?)" will be covered by panel members John Dunning, Chip Hiebler and Chris Zajac. Each will speak about a specific topic and answer audience questions.

Chip Hiebler

Chip is a successful windowsill grower who recently added a sun room growing space to his home. He has actively grown orchids for 3 years and has won MOS Show Table Awards. Favorite orchids are epidendrums and miltonias. Chip serves as MOS Treasurer. He will talk about how a first orchid turns into a passion, about a hobby progressing over 3 years into a passion and how to inexpensively and effectively provide humidity for windowsill culture.

Chris Zajac

Chris transitioned into a skilled orchid grower through experimentation of indoor lighting and outdoor culture. He has been an avid orchid grower for 7 years and has won several MOS Show Table Awards. Chris serves as a Director on the MOS Board. He will discuss Indoor and Outdoor watering techniques, use of 1000 watt full spectrum bulb for indoor growing and the beauty of growing orchids in trees.

John Dunning

John knew nothing about orchid culture after retiring 8 years ago, but started learning by using books and the wise advice of several MOS members. He has kept alive some orchids for as long as 7 of his 8 years of growing them indoors, using his sun porch and 2 basement plant rooms. He will talk about outdoor survival and protecting plants from hot summer sun and pesky garden pests and adding spice to your growth media.

Orchids of Latin America

Want to stroll through a tropical rainforest on a cold winter's day? Drink in a fragrant orchid? The 2013 orchid exhibition at the National Museum of Natural History, Orchids of Latin America, explores the rich crossroads where orchid botany, horticulture, and Latin American cultures meet. Featuring orchids from the Smithsonian Gardens Orchid Collection and the United States Botanic Garden Orchid Collection, the exhibit looks at the importance of orchids in Latin American folklore and cultural traditions, explores how that region is a hotbed for scientific research on orchid biology and evolution, and highlights conservation efforts to preserve orchids and their habitats for future generations. On March 19th, 21st and 27th, 8:30 - 10 am, Tom Mirenda, Orchid Expert, will offer The Smithsonian Associates Tour. This exhibit is well worth the trip to brighten up a bleak winter day. It runs until April 24.

What's going on at AOS Headquarters?

If you have had an occasion to speak with anyone at AOS Headquarters, you may find some new additions (or changes of duties) for the staff. With the addition of Gladys Garcia-Greenberg last summer, a realignment of some of the duties over the past few months has occurred. As a way of introduction, the current staffing at AOS is:

Ron McHatton, Chief Operating Officer (rmchatton@aos.org)

Gladys Garcia-Greenberg, Director of Administration and Finance (ggg@aos.org)

Naya Marcano, Membership Associate (naya@aos.org) (responsible for Judging/Affiliated Society/Shows/Awards)

Maria San Juan, Membership Assistant (maria@aos.org)

Alexandra Cernat, Membership Assistant (Alexandra@aos.org)

John Wrench, Advertising (jwrench@aos.org)

Alain Gonzalez, Accounting (alain@aos.org)

If you have any questions that do not fit into any category listed above, you may always send them to theaos@aos.org. The main phone number at headquarters is 305-740-2010. Each Committee also has its own email address. The various committees and contact information may be found in the front of Orchids, as well as on the AOS website.

Hopefully by now you have checked out the digital version of our monthly magazine, Orchids. It can be downloaded and read on your computer, tablet or whatever portable device you may have. It has been very well received, especially for those recipients outside the United States. It is usually available before the first of each month.

Time is running out for the purchase of the 2013 Conservation Calendar. I understand that supplies are becoming limited. Contact headquarters for special bulk ordering or to just order one! Remember $2 of each purchase price funds the AOS conservation initiatives.

February judges' choice

Dendrobium aggregatum variety majus

I bought this plant from Waldor Orchids several years ago. At that time, it had approximately 20 mature canes, and was planted in sphagnum moss in a 5-inch plastic pot. Since I have not had much success growing in sphagnum moss, I transplanted it into a plastic basket using fast-draining bark mix.

This type of dendrobium is not easy to bloom. It requires bright light (similar to cattleyas), and daily watering and fertilizing during the growing season from April to October. I take it out of the greenhouse and keep it under 50% shade during summer. Once the temperature goes down in the fall it returns to the greenhouse, hung close to the roof, and watering and fertilizing ceases completely.

At about 55-degree winter temperatures, this plant initiates multiple flower spikes. This is when I groom the plant; I apply Neem oil to deter pests. Getting the flowers to open all at the same time is tricky (and out of my control). And the blooms only last for two or three weeks at most. Once in full bloom, though, it is a bright, cheerful sight to behold (Maria refers to it as the "happiness plant"). The sweet, honey-scented fragrance during the day just completes this beautiful package.

February Judges' Choice Award winner
